

PAN-AMERICAN NATIONS PLAN WAR ON WILD NARCOTIC TRAFFIC

MEETING TO BE CODE TO BE DRAFTED

To Urge European Drug Nations to Halt the Illegal Flow of Narcotics

By EDWARD L. ROBBAN

Washington, Nov. 26 (U.S.)—The first united attack by the Pan-American nations to end the nefarious drug traffic on the western hemisphere was in prospect today.

The problem of narcotics control, it was learned, will be given a prominent place on the agenda of the second Pan-American conference of directors of health which convenes here next April.

The meeting will bring together the health officers of all the American nations including officials of the United States Public Health Service.

LEADERS IN DRUG WAR
Meeting here under the auspices of the Pan-American Union and the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, the delegates will be confronted with the task of promoting and protecting the health and well being of the millions of inhabitants of North, Central and South America.

Although the nations on this side of the Atlantic have long led the world in attacking the drug problem, never before has this evil been made the subject of an official Pan-American conference with the necessary authority to deal with it effectively. Such a conference has long been advocated by the Hearst Newspapers.

The tentative agenda provides for the drafting of a model narcotics code which, if approved by the conference, will be the basis for similar laws in the other Pan-American nations for adoption.

U. S. FAVOR RESTRICTION
The conference will be asked to go further and adopt a resolution calling upon those European Nations which manufacture drugs on a large scale to "clean house" and prevent the steady flow of drugs into illegitimate channels. Until raw materials and manufacturing are restricted, the United States is unable to deal generally against the traffic in these producing nations.

A resolution which was proposed, and which was voted upon, provided that, should have a tremendous influence on the conference of narcotics which has been called by the League of Nations to meet at Geneva next May. With the health officers of the United American nations on record as favoring definite and drastic restrictions on the traffic should feel it doubly urged to prevent the production of the traffic in the future.

PLAN MEETS WITH FAVOR
The idea of a Pan-American conference to deal with the narcotic problem has already met with high favor among the nations of the Americas. Mexico is especially anxious to cooperate.

The health officers will meet from April 20 to April 25 next year. As a result of their first conference in 1926, rapid advancement was made in improving the sanitary and health conditions of the member nations. The deliberations are regarded with friendly eyes by all Latin-American governments.

Regarding the narcotics problem, the conference will consider the recently proposed regulations for aerial navigation and a number of other subjects.

Bookkeeper Admits Aid in Bomb Plot

San Francisco, Nov. 26 (AP)—Thomas E. Boyle, 24, San Francisco bookkeeper, was being held here today after confessing he had transported a trunk containing 200 sticks of dynamite from San Francisco to Spokane as an accomplice of Henry A. Lee in the unsuccessful plot to blow up the Spokane Chronicle building.

Boyle told officers he had hired him for $200 and expenses to plant the bomb. The bookkeeper was quoted as saying he once had operated a bootlegging establishment in Spokane but that a campaign by the newspaper had put him out of business.

French Close Down Rice Rubber Estates

London, Nov. 26 (AP)—The newspaper Handelsblatt has been informed that five French rubber estates in Tannan, on the west coast of Sumatra, are being closed down for two years. All colonies have been demilitarized with the exception of one or two small islands. This would mean a reduction of about 1,800,000 kilograms annually in rubber exports from the Dutch East Indies.

When Giving Is Worthy of Its Thanks

THANKSGIVING came to a number of worthy, needy homes today when the Olympia Service Club got names from the Boston American's Helping Hand and gave out Thanksgiving baskets. Julius Thompson, Washington St., Olympia Theater usher, is shown giving a basket to an applicant. (Staff photo.)

Big Midnight Show to Aid Basket Fund

Goodfellow—here is your chance to do something else for the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund and the needy.

At midnight on Dec. 15, there will be a gala after show at the Keith-Boston Theater (formerly the Keith-Albee) and in addition to the feature acts from Boston, there will be a good turn of the night for the benefit of the Basket Fund and just what those who will be and how they like up will be told you later.

MIDNIGHT, DEC. 15
Keep the date in mind—Dec. 15 at midnight.
Meanwhile, have you sent in your contribution yet to the American's Basket Fund?

If you haven't, do it now, for every donation, small and large, will be put happy on Christmas Day. Don't let your own day of celebration be marred by thoughts that you have not tried to brighten the day of others, even to the comparatively minor degree of furnishing them with sufficient food.

Especially the children, who do not understand why their stockings are not filled when those of their more fortunate fellow-volunteers are.

REALLY GOOD FELLOWS
You Goodfellows really round! You men and women who have contributed to the Basket Fund, and who have seen the newspaper's Christmas Basket Fund and who have seen the members of the Boston Evening American's Goodfellow Club—don't forget that this is another year, and the toughest year in any of many a decade.

The Christmas Basket Fund supplement, this year, the work of the Boston Evening American's Helping Hand department, which has been busy for some weeks past in needy work, collecting clothes and obtaining quick relief for many needy and shivering families.

Much more than that already expected will be necessary to supply the wants of families that otherwise would go hungry on this Christmas Day. In 1929, but no matter how small your donation is, it will be acceptable.

GIVE IT UP
Do not hesitate if you cannot give but this is a battle which can be won in greater measure—and to this end the committee is sure that your gift will also be highly acceptable.

This year it is the ambition of the Boston Evening American to be as successful with the Christmas Basket Fund as it was with the Christmas Basket Fund last year. The members of the Boston Evening American's Helping Hand department, who have seen the newspaper's Christmas Basket Fund and who have seen the members of the Boston Evening American's Goodfellow Club—don't forget that this is another year, and the toughest year in any of many a decade.

Send in your donations and your gifts to the Christmas Basket Fund, Department, Boston Evening American, 25 Church St., Boston, Mass. and they will be put to good use.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Boston Evening American, you will find a list of properties for sale at reasonable prices. If you are interested in any of them, please call on the real estate agent who is in charge of the sale.

IMMIGRANT BAN WINS FAVOR

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—Restriction of immigration is to be sponsored by Chairman Johnson of the House immigration committee at the December session of Congress.

Expressing the opinion that restrictions heretofore should be drawn with a view to permanent Johnson also registered doubt "that the United States ever again will permit arrival of immigrants who would interfere with economic conditions."

He plans to continue with Senator Pittman, who recently proposed a two-year suspension of immigration. Johnson added: "I have no doubt that the President, Secretary Davis, and the members of both committees will have little difficulty in agreeing."

He said he had no confidence in estimates of the Russian wheat crop and the amount that country could export for the next year.

Agree to Co-operate With Republicans for Farm and Unemployment Relief

Washington, Nov. 26 (INS)—In line with a pledge to co-operate with the Hoover administration in relieving agricultural distress and unemployment, Democratic congressional leaders today agreed to join the Republicans in enacting a definite program, including:

1—Appropriation of any fund requested by the Federal Farm board for its stabilization policy.

2—Appropriation of a large fund for road construction in the states, with or without local contributions.

3—Appropriation to spend work on public buildings already authorized by the Federal Farm board.

At one conference, Sen. Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate, met Representative Byrne of Tennessee, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, Senator Thompson of Virginia, chairman of the Democratic senatorial committee, Senator Shannon of Virginia, Senator Walsh of Minnesota, assistant Senate leader, and Bernard Baruch, New York Democratic leader.

WITH "RESERVATIONS"
It was agreed the leaders would support the administration on all agricultural and unemployment relief legislation. They announced, however, that this pledge of cooperation could not be construed as either an endorsement of or a compliance with the administration's policies.

HELPER HAND CHEERS MANY

Thanksgiving Day approached today with much of the threatened bleakness and despair, warded off for many families in New England through the Boston Evening American's Helping Hand Department.

By individuals, by groups and by clubs have been given to the Helping Hand Department for aid of families in need of food, clothing, fuel and other commodities that most of us secure as a matter of course.

Large single response came from the Milk Wagon Drivers Union, Local 381, represented by John Ford, president, and Harry McGilvray, business agent.

MILK DRIVERS TOUCHED
The Milk Wagon Drivers Union, this year, cooperating with the Boston Evening American's Helping Hand Department, will give turkey dinners to 20 needy families of the total that have applied to that department for aid. The union has 20 members, although it had been their original plan to take only 10. The 20 were decided after the union representatives had read the public appeals.

From the Olympia Service Club, composed of officers of the Washington St. Olympia Theater, came a request for menus of 10 needy families, which the club will deliver to the needy families.

Five members of the Boston Y. M. C. A. walked into the Boston Evening American office and secured names of five needy families, for which the Y. M. C. A. men will care.

There were more than a dozen responses to the appeal of one family in Eastport, Me., for food and clothing. After this family was taken care of, some of the volunteers in this instance agreed to transfer their relief to some of the many other cases.

Actor's Daughter, Missing 5 Days, Found on Stage

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 26 (AP)—Anxiety of Herbert O'Connor, Shakespearean actor, for the safety of his little daughter, Rosemary, has turned to relief, for the 15-year-old girl, missing five days, has been found and has demonstrated ability to take care of herself. Rosemary is back today with her father.

Her father came here recently from Hamilton, Ont. Last Thursday Rosemary left a Hamilton concert to join him. A telegram failed to reach the parent and no one was on hand to greet her.

The child was perplexed, but undaunted. She took a room for the night and next morning had only 25 cents left. It took her only a few minutes to work out a problem that has baffled many older heads. She invested her capital in Christmas cards at a penny apiece. Fortified with her fetching smile, she sallied forth to the street corners and sold her cards at 5 cents each. Then she bought more cards and repeated her business triumph. After supper, she took a stroll, passed a theater displaying an animal your night sign and determined to put her talents to a test. Entering, she canvassed the audience, asking numbers if they would "give a little girl a big hand." Then she did the dance and sang two songs. The applause was spontaneous. The manager of the theater awarded her first prize—$120. She paid her room rent and bought many evening gowns.

The newspapers carried a story of the child's disappearance. A woman who had seen the little girl in the theater called up the police station and police finally located Rosemary.

TROOPS CALLED IN MILL RIOT

Richmond, Va., Nov. 26 (AP)—Gov. Pollard today directed Col. H. L. One of Stanton, 110th Infantry National Guard, to place troops on guard in Pittsylvania county where disorders, have resulted incident to the strike of union workers in the Riverbank and Van River Mills.

Adj.-Gen. Hale was called into conference with the governor and the delegation representing the union strikers today. Gen. Hale said he had received a report from Maj. Atkins at Danville that non-union workers were kept out of the mills by a human barricade and that several street cars had been stoned.

The regiment, whose full strength is 800 men, will arrive in Pittsylvania county late this afternoon and be quartered there to do guard duty and keep vigilance over the situation. Governor Pollard said.

The governor said the troops were being sent at the request of Commonwealth's Attorney F. J. Handley of Pittsylvania county. The reason the request was declined last night, the governor said, was because of a conference between Pittsylvania and Danville authorities to determine whether the situation could be handled without the assistance of troops. The governor was informed that no definite action would be taken.

The governor withheld action until after a conference this morning with a committee representing the striking union workers. Commissioner of Labor John Hopkins Hall and Adj.-Gen. W. W. Hale.

VATICAN PAPER HITS 2 PASTORS

Vatican City, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Vatican paper, frequently used by the Vatican for official announcements, today criticized the visit to Italy of two Italian-American clergymen and what it called "provocative activities."

The Vatican paper, by criticizing the "liberty of cult" in Italy to "liberty of offense" in the religion of the Italian State and people.

"Protestants of this type," the article asserted, "are tolerated because of the new law for non-Catholics in Italy. They feel themselves perfectly free to send their ignominious confutations of Catholic doctrine to migration and teachers. This is what is called, in plain language, laughing at the law and the lawmakers."

The two column editorial was based on an article in a Protestant periodical by the Rev. Stephen Testa, reporting his visit with Cardinal of Brooklyn, N. Y. He wrote that he had seen several thousand Italian school teachers and a quantity of religious literature to earthquake sufferers in the Valley area.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

How is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable source of bringing up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From our receipt get 2½ ounces of Pines, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. This you make a full pint of better rapidly than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat, soothe with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It breaks the crusty phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pines is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing so effective is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchitis.

Do not accept a substitute for Pines. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

HAWKS HAMMER BRUINS AGAIN

It doesn't seem possible that a team with the all-around strength of the Bruins could go through three games without chalking up a victory, but that is just what the Rosenberns have done during the past week, and they are in danger of taking another sock on the chin when they face the Ottawa Senators at the Garden tomorrow evening.

The Senators are no longer the mighty outfit that ruled supreme in the hockey world a few years back. For one thing, King Clancy, their once great defenseman in blue and white, is now sporting Toronto's colors, and he is really hard to beat.

Yet the visitors have in Eric Kilrea a forward second to none in the league, a fine goal guard in Connell and such steady players as Finnson, Lamb, Art Smith, Alex Smith, Pettinger, Connor and Gagne to go with their pair of stars.

Against the virtually invincible Bruins of last year, the Senators might not stand a chance, but the Bruins this year are far from being invincible as yet and the odds are bound to have their influence tomorrow night.

Clancy used to make Ottawa one of the best visiting attractions to visit the Bruins each year. Kilrea is every bit as good in the color of the Bruins, but in his line he is not packed in as outstanding as the defense star.

TAFFEY ABEL, Chicago Blackhawk ace, is shown about to send a speedy puck against Tiny Thompson in the first period of their game at the Garden. The Hawks won, 4 to 3, for the second victory over the local six this season.

Kilrea One of Fastest

Next to Howie Morenz of Les Canadiens, Kilrea is the fastest and fastest forward in the game and though he has been playing in the big show for four years, he is only 21 and should rate as the greatest forward before he hangs up his skates for good. Two years ago, Ottawa turned down $30,000 offered by the Bruins for the youngster and today he couldn't be purchased at any price.

Starting with him on the forward line will be Frank Finnson, far from a weakling, on the other wing and Joe Lamb, hockey's bad man in center.

The Smith boys, Alex and Art, two mighty tough customers, and Alex Connell will form the defense. Although the Bruins aren't quite as well as last year, they are still a team to be feared. Manager Art Ross contemplates no change in his lineup. He will continue until further notice to start Zetter, Oliver and Galloway with Shors and Hitchman on defense and use Clapper, Gainer and Welland on the second line, and Chapman, Hutton and Harris on the third. Pratt and Owen, of course, will continue to see plenty of action on the defense.

Rose, however, is not especially pleased over the way some of his charges have been performing of late, and the boys will have to do a lot of extra practicing if they don't snap out of it very soon.

The motive play of the Bruins is to attack all its enemy breaking records early in the season and have no strength left when the championship playoffs start, as was the case last year, but neither does he want them to fail to score a victory in three starts.

Open up a pack of O. G.'s and take a good sniff. That's the true aroma of real tobacco.

They contain no added aromas. No irritating flavoring to hide coarse tobacco. No added substances that burn into throat-scrawching vapors.

O. G.'s are just fine tobacco at its best. Smell them, taste them, test them fairly. Your nose, your throat, your taste... all three guardians of your health... will say "WE WANT OLD GOLDS."

Ticknor Greatest Center of Season, Says Runyon

By DAMON RUNYON.

New York, Nov. 26.—Mr. Chick Meehan, football coach at New York University, and a very good catch, at that, panned me little by the following crack:

"The All-American selection is not with the mud and it will not be surprising to see Yale, Harvard and Princeton represented in such teams. This will prove conclusive. What All-American teams are the 'bunk'."

I rather nerve with Mr. Meehan that the All-American are the chosen billions, which is not good enough but very good old Latin. My agony over Mr. Meehan's selection is if he the best center in the football world today, he'll do until the best center in the world is named.

Mr. Meehan, however, is not only mad at Yale, Harvard and Princeton, but that he has never seen Harvard play.

Would Name Ticknor on All-American Team

If he had, I am quite sure that Mr. Meehan would freely admit that while his license revoked is the "bunk," "is one that falls to name Ten Ticknor, of Harvard, as its center, is a two 'bunk' and maybe three 'bunk'."

New Best Ticknor, of Harvard, is a highly "rager" man. I am told of rich family and with all the skill of a player, he is a character of his own time. He is a player who can play center to wha-lah-ah-ah, and if he is the best center in the football world today, he'll do until the best center in the world is named.

He gave great exhibitions against Yale, Saturday. He gave a great exhibition in every game he played, not only this year, but last year, too, when he was nominated All-American by every football critic that could be named.

But in these piping times, the very fact that a player is named All-American is a great honor. It is a team of a team of the former Big Three is against him, the All-American players being chary of picking him for fear of being accused of that old partnership that was attributed to Camp, and his contemporary.

As a center, he is essentially Bostonian in manner. Ben Ticknor comes from New York City. He would up his football career Saturday, and will probably become one of those big Wall Street brokers. If he is the best center in the world, he'll do until the best center in the world is named.

BROWN LOSES PAIR OF STARS

Providence, Nov. 26.—Jack Ferreira, Brown variety end, was sent to the infirmary with a heavy cold and it was said that it was doubtful if Ferreira could take his place in the game against Colgate tomorrow morning.

The loss of these two players, together with that of Gord Vane, quarterback who had a broken foot, broke last Saturday, left Brown in a badly crippled condition for one of the most important games on the schedule, Friday, Sunday, was also hurt Saturday. He probably will start tomorrow, but there is a question as to whether he can continue for the whole game.

A tentative starting lineup was announced by the coaches as follows:

Allen and Sawyer, end; Nelson and Blackstock, tackle; Richardson and Giffin, or Hines, guard; Nelson, center; Harra, quarterback; Edra and Chase, or F. and J., halfbacks; Rotelli, fullback.

Jeff Dickson Has License Revoked

Jeff Dickson, the European promoter, who bunched Paulino into a hoosgow in Paris to keep him from coming to Boston and boxing Jim Maloney for the Christmas fund, has had his license revoked by the French Boxing Federation.

It was discovered that Dickson had an interest in several of the fighters he has been using on his cards. The Paulino-Carrera match, which Dickson has been trying to promote for months, still is in statu quo.

Bill McCarty telephoned all the way from New York to say that William Runolph Hearn, a boxer, was a guest of Max Baer, the world's heavyweight champion, at a luncheon on Chamber Street, Berlin.

CAPE COD CANAL WORK URGED

The Governor's emergency committee, on receiving reports from the Cape Cod Canal Commission, urged official Washington to speed plans for the widening and deepening of the Cape Cod Canal in order to provide for more tonnage.

Upon receipt of a report from the Engineering Service of May 21, 1929, to the effect that the canal was surveyed the canal had submitted a report to Col. W. J. Barden of the department. Chairman James J. Phelan telegraphed Col. Barden the board of engineers on Friday last, and requested that the canal be widened and deepened.

He asked that legislation authorizing canal reconstruction be speedily enacted.

Chairman Phelan was informed by the chief of the government engineering department that Congress would be asked to authorize whatever recommendations were made by the committee, consistent with proper consideration of economic and engineering problems involved.

The only other act important in the transportation situation was a conference between Chairman Phelan and Col. W. J. Barden, president of the Boston Edison Co., concerning which there may be an announcement later Phelan said.

A THOUGHT FOR THANKSGIVING DAY, 1930

How We May Show Gratitude for Our Own Blessings

WE WISH you all a happy Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving Day is decidedly an American institution.

It was formally instituted by the Pilgrims at Plymouth in 1621 in gratitude for the harvest crop that intervened between them and starvation.

Nine years later, the Puritans here in the Massachusetts Bay Colony "got down upon their knees and offered thanks to the Almighty God for HIS success of them in their dire hour of distress."

For 50 years following, it was observed as an annual festival, a spontaneous outpouring of thankfulness by humble people of a distinct religious philosophy.

The Continental Congress prayed to "the arbiter of justice" that their cause might be successful and it formally established one or more days of Thanksgiving in each year of the Revolution that the interest of independence might be sustained and the people delivered from the sufferings of warfare.

President George Washington designated similar periods of fast and prayer, and President Madison, in response to a resolution of Congress itself, proclaimed the day of gratitude when the people of

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING. In the autumn of 1621 the Pilgrims set apart a day of Thanksgiving for the mercies God had bestowed upon them. A feast was the feature of the occasion and, to it, according to Mrs. Austin in her "Standish of Standish," King Massasoit and his Indian braves were bidden, and all hands partook of the homely viands provided. This picture reproduced by courtesy of Ladies Home Journal.

America had finally fought the War of 1812 to a successful termination.

President Abraham Lincoln appointed the last Thursday of November as the official Thanksgiving Day and since that time succeeding Presidents and Governors of all the American States have issued the customary proclamations without interruption.

We live in a truly wonderful country, equipped by Nature with marvelous assets of beauty and natural resources and supplied by the indomitable will of the people with the best conception of democratic government yet devised in all history.

We have much indeed to be thankful for.

Material wealth and contentment, however, do not rest upon all our people in this hour of economic emergency.

So, let tomorrow be a day not only of prayer and thanksgiving, but let it be a day of resolution in which those to whom Providence has been kind will resolve to share their bounty with the cheerless and unfortunate.

If every citizen who has reason for gratitude would decide on tomorrow to spend a little more each week or to provide an odd job somehow for men and women who need work badly, it would be an observance appropriate to the injunction of HIM who said, "Forget not thy brother."

$3,000,000 Available Now For State Road Work

Ely Suggestion Would Release It

In the first formal address since his election, Joseph B. Ely demonstrated an aggressive concern in the welfare of the people of Massachusetts that contained a splendid augury of his administration.

By all means the people expect him to think in terms of stimulating business, relieving unemployment, alleviating or forestalling the consequent sufferings from it and of turning Massachusetts toward the sun of good times again.

If a bond issue is necessary for the construction of highways, the erection of public buildings for our overcrowded hospitals and public institutions and for other enterprises of a permanent character that can provide work for people, let us have it.

The people of Massachusetts have paid heavily in current taxes for the progress of their State and for improvements that will be enjoyed by coming generations as well as by ourselves. The pay-as-you-go policy is perfectly all right when the people CAN pay as they go. The State should not be in the position of insolvency as compared with its inherent wealth and it laid on taxes with abandon when profits were manifold and there was a job available for every man who wanted one.

Now the scales have turned, and the State should be as generous to its people as they have been generous and loyal to it.

Mr. Ely seems to have that social and political philosophy, and the State and the people will be the better for it.

It has come to our attention that the State Department of Public Works is authorized by existing law to begin spending next week one-fourth of its annual income in anticipation of future revenues.

The law will make $3,000,000 available throughout December for the construction, maintenance and repair of highways—which mean work for the unemployed, permanent improvement for the State and larger convenience for the automobilists.

We assume the State officials would ordinarily await a declaration of the Governor-elect's policy in the matter.

We accordingly recommend that he tell them to "go to it" with the same aggressiveness and strong spirit he manifested in his address to the Jefferson Society.

We Have Grown

What Does Increased Population Mean to New England?

The final census figures reveal that New England increased her population from 7,400,909 to 8,161,351.

That increase of 760,000 people—a new city about the size of Boston—means more productive power, more inherent wealth and a larger consuming power of the things we manufacture and produce. How much it means in new patriotism and love of country, time only will tell.

Can it be that a substantial area of the country, already thickly settled, whose population is increasing almost at the rate of one per cent a year, needs to look to the future with uncertainty and lack of optimism?

Or does it mean that we fail to take account of the enormous gains we have made and to build satisfactorily upon them? Growth means power and increased opportunities. Patriotism may have hold of the leaders. But all the facts are against them.

New York Day by Day

Sax Gives Way to the Accordion

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The saxophone goes the way of the big cycle and oblivion. While the present crop of tooters are not casting the instrument aside, there are few fledglings to take their places. The accordion is gradually supplanting the sax in collegiate popularity.

The accordion has not suffered the comic paper stigma accorded the saxophone. Parents, associated it with wild parties, postage stamp caps and gin swirling. A big musical house reports selling more accordions in one afternoon than in a week.

Rudy Valley's future gave the sales of saxophones a sharp twist they never enjoyed before. Thousands of impressionable young men decided to use them as aspirators to scale their ladders. But this increased the kidding and frightened off the timid.

Phil Baker's popularity as a smart talker, interpolating arias from his snow-white accordion appeared to many youngsters who secretly desired to emulate him. The night clubs featured accordions. The technique is comparatively easy and the music blends with moonlight romances.

Nevertheless many young men owe a debt of gratitude to the saxophone. During summer vacations they have been able to join liner and coastwise steamer orchestras and see a grab world turn magical. Any number "saxophone" their way through college.

Also doctors often recommend saxophone blowing as a remedy for bronchial trouble. Among notables reported to be mastering the accordion in leisure moments are the Prince of Wales, King Alfonso and Michel Armand, French customs inspector.

Five actors have gripped their pen so long as Charlie Chaplin. Ten years is considered an almost impossible stretch for popularity to remain at its peak. Yet there is a main reason today in a Chaplin picture that he made his enormous hit 17 years ago.

One wonders what happened in old London barely from whom Chaplin admired he acquired his famous mantrims—like shuffling walk, quick heel turns and derby tip. The old fellow held horses in front of a pub and was especially amusing when in his cups. Chaplin used to mimic him for boys in his neighborhood.

Chaplin had many imitators who annoyed him, several being stopped by legal injunctions. His funny comedy was literally squeezed out of a boyhood of frustration. He was in an English poorhouse for years and when he got his first chance at a job suffered an accident from which his eyesight was believed lost.

Personal nomination for the most graceful hands on the American stage—those of Helen Morgan.

I often wonder why taxi-cab drivers cannot express the courtesy of the old time rented stable keeper from whom you livery a horse and buggy for a drive. The horse was carried to a glass and the buggy spotted. You paid him $1.50 an hour—it was a little more than an hour's didn't matter—and a tip would have been an affront.

Richard Le Gallienne returned to America recently for some household effects in his home in the Catskills to take to Paris where in a seven flights up attic he expects to spend the rest of his poetic dream.

In a corner of the Catskill house was a horse's nest. The poet plugged up the exit with mud, had the whole thing carefully crated and shipped to Paris marked: "One horse's nest." All of which may be a poetical sentimentalism or a joke on the French customs inspectors. Mr. Le Gallienne did not say.

"We know you are Scotch," writes Susan D. Atlanta, "but we are four girls on a first visit to New York and will drop around a place on the Greenwich avenue."

A GOOD way to find jobs for those 200 surplus emigrants who will have to be kicked out of Annapolis, after being educated at public expense for the navy, would be to build a few warships for 'em.

IT IS now estimated that the Army-Navy football game will give the $1,500,000 mark, to say nothing of the stimulation it will give to the coin-toss, conked dog and limit industries.

No Aid for 'White Collars'

Clerks and Office Employees Out of Luck

A correspondent suggests that the white-collar employees—the clerks, stenographers, salesmen and the like—take the blow of unemployment hardest upon the chin.

Brokers' offices have discharged numbers, we are told. Consolidation of great corporations "in the interest of efficiency" has wiped the jobs away from countless others.

The government will try to help by construction of public works. We are reminded that this produces income for the skilled mechanic, the artisan and the man "the sweat of whose labor appears on his brow."

The white-collar man out of work can not essay the heavy manual labor. The bread line, the soup kitchen or the other forms of charity would hit too heavily at his pride.

Unfortunately, most of this is true. He is, at most, the indirect beneficiary of these efforts to relieve unemployment. He is not organized or unionized.

Being the weakest unit in our economic life, he is the one entitled to the utmost consideration, at a time like this. Unemployment insurance might do more for him than all the others put together. But it does not exist. Meanwhile, he must rely upon the employer for whom he was good enough in the time of plenty and whose continued interest in his welfare he has at least the moral right to expect.

Firemen's Relief Fund

An Opportunity to Aid Worthy Cause

We think of firemen as risking their lives to save the lives and property of others.

We read the casualty list of their own injuries, possibly their death, pay the customary still tribute to their heroism and promptly proceed to forget it all.

What becomes of the widow, or the orphaned children? Who provides for the family, with its dependents, when the head of the family is taken or is rendered incapable of sustaining it by injuries suffered in the performance of duty to society?

Firemen are brave enough, but neither they nor their families can live on tributes and high-sounding resolutions committed to scrolls of parchment.

Their dependents are maintained very largely by the relief fund, which is raised by the firemen's ball of the Boston Fire Department to be held at the Mechanics Building on February 2.

This fund needs more than $30,000 this year. And the man in the blue uniform who will shortly come to your door with the tickets may be the very man who will save your life, sacrifice his own and leave his family to the caprices of your generosity.

Capital Silhouettes

By GEORGE B. BROWN

NOW THAT Uncle Sam is going after the racketeers in a big way, it looks as though the limitation of pineapples would have to be given a place on the Geneva agenda.

A GOOD way to find jobs for those 200 surplus emigrants who will have to be kicked out of Annapolis, after being educated at public expense for the navy, would be to build a few warships for 'em.
